My quest to find a cheap used BMW in London may well be over thank goodness. I have really limited time as I work as a driving instructor and it can be very unsociable hours. I have been searching various car dealer websites on line in order to find a long established, credible BMW specialist garage who will structure the right finance deal and look after me if things go wrong. I do believe the after care service is more important than the initial sale. I need someone who views me as a lifelong customer and who is immediately there to help me from checking my tyre pressures to carrying out MOT and routine servicing.
